The listed products were found to contain soy, corn, canola, or cotton-based ingredients, which are the most commonly grown genetically engineered crops. Kraft has stated to consumers that some of their products may contain genetically engineered ingredients. This is a partial list of Kraft products that may contain these ingredients based on a supermarket survey.